

Thank you New Century Homes for making our dream come true.

For many years Bill and I wanted to create a master bedroom suite on top of our garage. I was always reluctant to undertake such a huge project. My fear was mainly due to the horror stories we have heard about dealing with contractors.

In the spring of 2007 we decided to go ahead and build the master bedroom suite. My husband Bill appointed me to be in charge of this project.

After meeting with several contractors in order to do my due diligence, we decided that New Century Homes are the right people for our project. I liked their approach, their style and their integrity.

My interaction was directly with David Williams one of the partners with New Century Homes who has been extremely professional and thoughtful. From the design phase to the final touches, it has been all along an incredible good experience.

The most important thing for me was that David was able to translate my vision into reality and was able to reign me down when I was about to go overboard. He was very careful with the budget without compromising the quality and the design.

The brick work that was done on the addition matched exactly the existing 20 year old brick. The new arched window in the master bedroom is spectacular and it is the envy of our neighbors. Our bathroom, although not gigantic, ended up being a piece of art and a mini spa. My husband and I use the steam shower almost every night and the Jacuzzi almost as much.

Throughout the entire duration of the project, David was on time meeting with me every Friday to go over the details of the project, keeping me abreast of the progress and giving me an update if any changes occur. All of his subcontractors were professional and were careful about keeping our house as little disrupted as possible.

Overall, the project was done on time, on budget, and with the minimum amount of pain as possible. Most importantly, it looks fabulous and it really exceeded our expectations. One of my friends said that this part of my house should be featured in Architectural Digest! Not bad!

THANK YOU David, for making our dream come true. We love our new room and we are thrilled with the bathroom.
